Marriage Is Bad Medicine

For Willful Spirits

In most revues and musical con a young couple meet in some hotel garden, "fall in love," and are married in the last act, writes W. L. George in Harper's. Charge me not with lack of humor if I suggest that many marriages are so made. In my notebook are several confessions. Among them is that of a young girl who pledged her hand on board a liner because there was nothing else to do. (She was wrong; she could have jumped overboard.) People do marry as casually as they learn to play golf; but they take more pains with golf. In that negligence hides the nightmare that shall haunt them; they blunder into marriage; they think to conduct it without travail or diplomacy into the detachment of mature years. Therein they go astray, for marriage is a tool with many edges, and none shall use it with impunity that treat it without regard. For it may close as many doors as it can open. That marriage can close doors nonshould deny, and it is folly to overlook its limitations, notably those which bear an individual freedom. No skill or tolerance can make of mar riage a state akin to celibacy, and it is well to agree that the married are not free people in the sense of the unwed; this is not a reflection on the conjugal condition, for freedom is a word, and Silvio Pellico in the Spielberg found wings for his spirit that no Austrian peasant could fasten to his shoulders. To be free is sometimes to be derelict, and as in marriage such dereliction seldom arises, the loss is undamning to the state. But the married must, after the ceremony, realize "that they have this day lit a candle which cannot be put out;" accepting a new condition, they must be ready to adopt new manners, which is not easy when creatures are adult, differently bred and nurtured, perhaps rooted out of dissimilar social strata, even brought together across continents. They must abandon the idea that they may, unchecked, change their dwelling, their occupation, the circles of their friendships; all these things they may still do, but only in consultation. Or if they do not consult, if one imposes upon the other his will or the thrall of a nagging tongue, then shall victory turn as dust and ashes in his mouth.

How Clothing Is Standardized. As a matter of fact, the great number of us nowadays do wear "standardized" clething-hats, suits, shirts shoes, all turned out by factories repeating the same cut and the same pattern a million times over. We know this, but we do not want to be told it, and the wise advertiser announces his styles as "teeming with individuality," purchaser knows in his heart these who, we ask the reader whe could be comfortable in what has been noised throughout the length and breadth of England as "standardized suits for males"?-The Villager.

How to Use Siag on Roads.

Blast furnace slag for a number of years past has been used in the country districts and manufacturing towns of England for the construction of roads and as a macadamizing agent. If properly selected it forms a very good foundation, but should be placed at an incline in such a manner as to hold each lump upon its adjacent lump to prevent rocking, and then should be covered over with fine blast slag and properly rolled and consolidated afterward.

It is also successfully used with tar and other bituminous materials for footway and sidewalk paving.

When once set, concrete made from blast furnace slag is very tenacious and it is almost impossible to break it up with pick or bar.

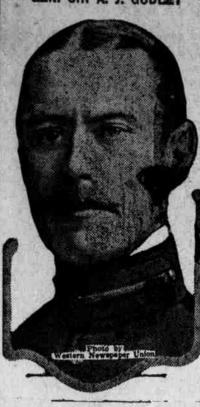

Why He Sought Penitentiary. Detective headquarters was surprised when Charles Peterson, sixtyfive years old, of Portland, Ore., shambled up to a sergeant and begged to be sent to the penitentlary at Jackson,

The man had "done" 29 years on a charge he never recognized. His "home" around which moved his only thoughts of shelter and of food, was within the stern walls of the penitentlary at Jackson.

Peterson, when given his liberty, desperately strained to regain his lost art of living, but, snatched from a former generation at his prime, he could not keep step with the "mechanical age," so he turned in bewilderment back to the penitentiary.

Why Airman Must Have Cood Hande The newest tribute to the airman is to say that he has "good hands" and to imply that he manipulates his machine as he would handle the reins of a horse with a sensitive mouth. The analogy is not very appropriate. The "good hands" in the case are those of the motorist. Good hands, combined with light, quick feet, prevent the mo torist's chopping and notching his gears, they prevent his starting away with a jump, they enable him to change speed noiselessly, to let in his clutch so that the drive is taken up imperceptibly; they prevent his tires from having their studs stripped out, the
